How Many Acres In Appomattox?

If you've ever wondered how much land the town of Appomattox covers, here's the answer — 640 acres, approximately one square mile.

LEGAL NOTICE

BE IT RESOLVED by the Town Council for the Town of Appomattox at its regular meeting held on Dec. 21, 1964, at the office of the Town Manager on Church Street, that in accordance with Section 58-811.1 of the 1950 Code of Virginia and the amendments thereto, that all new buildings substantially completed or fit for use, occupancy and enjoyment prior to November one of the year of completion shall be assessed when so completed or fit for use, occupancy and enjoyment, and the Commissioner of the Revenue of Appomattox County shall enter in the books the fair market value of such building; provided, however, that no such partial assessment shall become effective until information as to the date and amount of such assessment is recorded in the office of the official authorized to collect taxes on real property and made available for public inspection. The tax on such new building for that year shall be computed according to the ratio which the portion of the year such building is substantially completed or fit for use, occupancy and enjoyment bears to the entire year, and with respect to any assessment made under this section after September one of any year the five per cent penalty for non-payment by December five shall be extended to February five of the succeeding year.

Stratton Home Burns Sunday

Concord volunteers answered a call to the Marshall Stratton home near Stonewall Sunday morning, and then called on Appomattox volunteers to come about 11:30 a.m. when it appeared that there might not be sufficient water supplies to fight the fire.

One corner of the home was badly burned, according to Appomattox fire officials, but almost all of the family's furniture was saved.

Editor, Times-Virginian

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this means to express to the people of Appomattox County gratitude for their wonderful support of the efforts of the Appomattox Civic Chorus. The enthusiastic response of the people to the presentation of the Messiah not only showed their support for the chorus but also showed their interest in great music. Church support was general, as shown by the presence of more than ten ministers. For this interest and support we the members of the chorus are grateful. Appomattox can be justly proud that it has more than thirty five people who will consistently give of their time in order to prepare great music.

Soon the chorus will begin practicing for another concert. I would like to emphasize that the chorus is open to anyone who likes to sing. There are NO tryouts. You will never be required to sing alone unless you want help in determining what part you want to sing. Our continuing purpose is to provide the opportunity for people to SING. If the chorus can help you give expression to the desire to sing then I hope you will join. We invite everyone, young and old, alike to join with us and sing

May you enjoy Christmas as much as we have enjoyed the opportunity to serve you. Our hearty thanks!

GREETIN

The Pastor Speaks

Rev. Thomas Waddill

"And she brought forth her firstborn son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger . . ." These words describe the greatest event in human history. Because of this we celebrate Christmas. The birthday of the Christchild, what does it mean?

To Americans it means business. Every area of our economy is geared to the Christmas holiday. It is no longer a Christian holy day, to be observed with religious services. Rather it has become a festive occasion for everyone, Christian and atheist alike. It seems difficult at times to find any religious meaning left. Gifts are given to remind us of the greatest Gift; as expressions of that same kind of love which motivated God to give His Son. But much Christmas giving is motivated not by love but as payment for a gift of services received last year, or expected this year, or so as not to hurt someone's feelings. All the joy of giving is lost in such cases. Children often view Christmas as a time to get everything they have wanted for entire year. We are all caught in the whirl of our day. Sometimes we contribute to it; more often we can't get out even if we try. We can't escape the customs and influences of our society, but I believe that each of us can get more out of Christmas if we really want to.

The birth of Jesus was not just the birth of another great man, even a prophet. Rather it was the coming of God into the world "The Word (the Son of God) was made flesh and dwelt among us" God not only revealed His will to men. He revealed Himself. Jesus came to save men from their sins. This is what the birth of Jesus means. In the birth of Christ we see the love of God in action. We ourselves are the recipients of that loving action. God gave of Himself. This is what we as Christians are trying to commemorate at Christmas. If we can see this truth as we are involved in the activities surrounding Christmas it will have more meaning for us personally.

I would not try to revolutionize the observance of Christmas and doo away with all the non-religious customs surrounding it. Rather, let us distinguish between the purely religious and the secular. Let us give to the religious their true meaning: Take the matter of giving presents. We may not be able to do away with "exchanging gifts". We would be considered uncivilized. But there are many instances where we can capture the true meaning of giving. In our families we can practice and teach our children the real reason for giving and experience its joys. Outside the family we can give to those who cannot give in return. This is what God has done. Who can equal God's gift? We might even consider a gift to further the work of God's Kingdom.

You can think of other ways. I don't have space to mention more. How about sharing some of the ways you make Christmas more meaningful to yourself and your family? May God grant each of you a joyous Christmas season, filled with peace and happiness, and a New Year of service.

Wise Men's Gift

Lesson for December 27, 1964

Like golden gleams of light in a dark house of mystery, the wise men of Matthew's story come and go. They came from the east, they brought their gifts, they went home another way How many there were, what were their names and where their homes, no one knows. What was the star that led them? Did they know who the "King of the Jews" really was? Did they forget all the adventure, as the years grew cold? The church has never known exactly what to make of this story. Some count it a legend that has found its way into the original story. Some supply details not in the Bible.

They Did Not Know Who He Was

The wise men called the Child they were seeking "King of the Jews." Followers of this Child would find higher names for him in time. They would call him Savior, Son of God, even God only-begotten. It is very doubtful whether these visitors could have passed a good examination in "Christology." But they brought their gifts all the same. If they had known who he was, they might have come or sent messengers, from time to time during the years. They might have waited till the Child was grown, and sent some one to learn what wisdom would come from his mind. When the story of his life had been written, they might have asked for a copy. No, all they saw was a Child born to be a king. That he would be king of the world and not of the Jews only, that his throne would be not in Jerusalem's doomed walls but in the hearts of men, they did not know and could not know. They did not wait until they knew all about him before they made their gifts. They knelt to him as the highest they knew. They paid him tribute they paid no other. So it may be with us today. Do you know who Jesus is? The wisest man can never quite put into words the full meaning of Christ. But do you know his superior? Some super-Christ? There is none on the road, none promised to mankind. It will be time to speak of a greater if God sends one. Meanwhile what Christ requires is loyalty, not explanation. Following brings understanding.

They Brought What They Had

The gifts are interesting. Gold we can understand; that would befit a king. But myrrh and spices such as one could buy in any bazaar. For some reason it has always been supposed that these wise men were rich, even kings. Alas, wise men are not always rich in this world's goods. It is just as likely that they had spent all they had simply on the journey, and could spare only the little they had left for gifts. There was nothing to go with the gold: no pearls, no silver, no jewels. These were humble gifts, myrrh and frankincense; but if that was all they had, they gave it and gladly.

So it may be with us. We read stories of great and gifted men, and we think how much we could do for the kingdom of God if we were only men like Saint Paul, Saint Augustine, Martin Luther or William Carey. We doubt whether we could really endure to the end as martyrs if we fell into the hands of communist secret police. So because we cannot offer Christ great heroism, or outstanding genius, or immense wealth, we offer nothing at all.

They Did Not Ask to be Repaid

The gifts of the wise men were gifts, not loans. Not bribes. These men sent no statement of accounts payable. They did not think the Child, even a royal child, owed them some generosity in return. They were never repaid, never reimbursed for the expense of the long journey. A gift from them was a true gift, it was not something on account. Once more a thought for these days when it is still Christmas: how many of our gifts we made, how many of the generous thoughts we had, how much of what we may have done for Christ in his church, was really given?
